Lock is final immediately. Before confirmation, the five answers are saved drafts. The 11:00 deadline is the last opportunity to submit; it is not an editing window after Lock.

First-ever lock opens the account sheet (screen 10). After successful save, matchup 1 is locked. Then repeat screens 3–9 for Mariana vs Daniela. Only completion of matchup 2 finishes the round.

Returning players skip signup. If a lock request fails, retain the draft and show a retry; do not label it locked before successful save.

First lock only: save the account and matchup together. An unsuccessful save keeps the draft and offers retry. Phone verification and returning-account recovery belong to the implementation flow.

After success — 1 of 2 locked, 17:50.

Next: Mariana vs Daniela → repeat the five predictions → review → lock at 18:00.
No second signup.

Walkthrough transition: the next slide skips the repeated five screens and shows 2 of 2 locked at 18:02. It does not imply that signup alone completes the round.

Your Round 7 result

Results & Standings · Screen 20 of 29

The complete Round 7 result appears at 13:04 on the same day the round closed. It contains the per-prediction breakdown and then links to the season leaderboard.

Demo arithmetic: matchup 1 = 2 + 1 + 0 + 6 + 1 = 10 (Style misses: 64 and 54 fall in different 10-point bands; Confidence is exact, so 1 + 5); matchup 2 = 0 — a wrong winner pick always scores 0, never a partial point; round total = 10. Previous season total 80 → 90; rank 7 → 2 of 4,812.

Scoring rule (Mati, 2026-09-17): correct winner +2, missed winner 0; matching 10-point band +1, exact hit +5 additional. Maximum 26 per matchup. Illustrative scores are not a claim that the final scoring rule has been approved.

There are three statistics displayed in yellow boxes: "5-2 Record", "3 Rank", and "68% Avg crowd". Below these is a section for the "Next matchup" which says "vs Daniela · Round 8". At the bottom, there is a section for "New photo & video after Round 8" with a star icon and the text "All 16 refresh one photo + one video". Mati's review (2026-09-16): a missed round simply scores 0 — nothing carries over, and nothing is protected. The two recovery mechanics that were previously shown here were never approved and are cut from v1.

This is not the same as the lapsed-player recovery rule already agreed in rules-decisions-v2 (B7): that rule lets a player who stops for a while come back, capped at three rounds' worth, and is unaffected by this cut.

Round 12 — the last catch-up entry

Late entry · Screen 22 of 29

Section 1. Round 12 is the last round in which a new player can join and be offered catch-up. A new arrival may predict all 8 matchups of the round; an existing player continues on the normal 2.

Catch-up narrows the gap, it does not close it. A Round-12 joiner ends the season with 20 matchup opportunities against a day-one player's 36 — about 56%.

To confirm with Mat: Round 12 is a cash round under B10 (round prizes run 11–15). A joiner predicting 8 matchups can score up to 208 there against a veteran's 52 — four times the ceiling. The agreed fix is to score round prizes on the round's standard picks only, for everyone. That rule is not yet written down.

Rounds 13–15 — the card doubles

Endgame · Screen 23 of 29

Section 2. From Round 13 to Round 15 every player moves from 2 matchups to 4. The same five predictions apply to each, so a round is 20 predictions rather than 10.

New players may still join during Rounds 13–15, but with no catch-up — they play only that round's standard picks.

Worth a check before freeze: doubling the daily load in the last three rounds is the opposite of what the retention research recommends for the closing stretch. The mechanic is fine; the volume is what needs testing.

Section 3. The full 16-contestant table is published once Round 12 closes, showing at least position, wins and losses.

Its purpose is pressure: the audiences of contestants near the line can see exactly what is at stake before the playoff cut.

Records are illustrative but arithmetically sound — 12 matches each, 96 wins across the league. The tie on the cut line is deliberate, to show where B2's tie-break actually bites.

Sections 6 and 10. 1 v 8, 2 v 7, 3 v 6, 4 v 5. The winner of 1 v 8 meets the winner of 4 v 5; the winner of 2 v 7 meets the winner of 3 v 6. No re-seeding, which matches B10.

Mati asks for this as a component that updates after every result — the winner highlighted, the loser marked, the name carried forward — and explicitly not a static image redrawn by hand.

Shown mid-quarterfinals with one result in. The demo player's contestant, Valentina, is the 3 seed, so her quarterfinal is against Sofía — the same pairing the walkthrough opened on in Round 7.
